THE LIGHTHOUSE KEEPER.

Saul Rundlett and his little daughter Phœbe kept the Plum Pudding Lighthouse. Saul had been a sailor for half his life, but two or three narrow escapes from shipwreck had convinced him that it was desirable to have something solid beneath one's feet, and he had, with considerable difficulty—for there had been suspicion that Saul was not quite "steady" enough for lighthouse keeper—obtained the position on Plum Pudding Rock. Phœbe was born there, and, her mother dying when she was very small, had grown up there almost as wild and untrained as the sea gulls that built their nests in the crevices of the rocks. Quite as untrained, she might have been, if it had not been for Aunt Huldah Maria, who lived on Mouse Island.

There was a school on Mouse Island for six months in the year, and Phœbe went to it some times; she could not go regularly, because—well, although it is very sad it must be told—because it was not always safe to leave her father in charge of the lighthouse. He had been "steady" ever since he assumed the position of light house keeper, fifteen years before, until the last year. Even after that long period of successful resistance his old enemy, the love of drink, had fallen upon and conquered him. And nobody knew it but Phœbe.

Captain Saul, as everybody called him, had always been in the habit of going to Jim Bowling's shop, at Pondunquit Harbor, which was a sort of sailors' "snug harbor," to smoke his pipe and spin yarns with his old cronies bnt he never drank anything there. And it was only within the last year that he had brought anything home from the harbor to drink. Now he did it often; indeed, it was seldom he came home with out it, and, all by himself, he would have a drinking bout, growing merry at first and sing old sea songs and cracking jokes, and poor little Phœbe, who did not know the cause, thought his mood delightful, and wished he would always seem as happy; but soon he began to drink more heavily, and would pass from the merry stage into the cross and irritable one, and then become stupid, sleepy and utterly helpless. And, besides, her grief and humiliation were constantly anxious lest her father should lose his situation. They had no money, and where in the wide world could they find another home if they had to leave the Plum Pudding!

This was the sorrow and care that had changed Phœbe's face from a round and rosy and dimpled little one so that it was now pinched and wan, and had a careworn look that was sad to see. There were several men who wanted Captain Saul's position at the lighthouse, and would be glad to report anything that they could discover to injure him. Every day Phœbe expected that the blow would fall, and they would be obliged to leave their home.

There was to be a great merry-making on Mouse Island. Phœbe's oldest cousin, Marie Cordilly, was to marry Jed Collins, who was soon to sail as mate of the Flying Scud, the finest ship that ever hailed Pondunquit. But when Phœbe said "she didn't think she could come; she would rather stay at home and let her father come," there was a terrible outcry.

Aunt Huldah Maria said "Phœbe should come or she would know the reason," and that was just what Phœbe didn't want—that Aunt Huldah Maria should "know the reason why." So she said, if she possibly could, she would come. She tried to pursuade her father not to go to Pondunquit Harbor two or three days before the wedding, but on that very day he had an errand that could not be delayed, he said. He came back only just in time for Phœbe to get off to be at Aunt Huldah Maria's as early as she had promised. But he seemed very kind and affectionate, and told her "not to worry; he would take good care of the light," and kissed her, which had become quite unusual, and said "it was a great pity if the mate couldn't go off on a little lark when the captain was left behind to take care of the ship." He always called the lighthouse a ship, and Phœbe had been the mate ever since she was 5 years old.

Aunt Huldah Maria rejoiced, even in the midst of her labors as hostess, at Phœbe's bright face. Perhaps the child had only been a little overworked or ailing, and there was not so much trouble at the Plum Pudding as she had fancied. But even while the fiddler was playing his most entrancing strains and the wedding cake was being passed in most generous slices Phœbe heard a whisper that made her heart stand still. David Judkin, the son of the man who wanted her father's place, was talking to another young man.

"It isn't such a very thick fog, and I never saw a fog so thick that you couldn't see some sign of the Plum Pudding light from Mouse Island; and if it can't be seen to-night it isn't on account of the fog, but because the light isn't there."

"And the Advance is up in the harbor," said the other. "Captain Saul is at the end of his lighthouse keeping, if you are right."

"We might skirmish round a little and see," said David Judkins. "It would be a pity for the officers not to find it out, you know."

The two young men went out. Phœbe knew well where they were going. The Advance was the government steamer, whose office was to supply the lighthouses and see that they were kept in proper condition.

David Junkins was going to give warning that there was no light on the Plum Pudding. Phœbe slipped out of the house unobserved. The fog had come so suddenly that it seemed like magic. A dense gray mist seemed to have swallowed up the world. Only very brilliant rays of light could penetrate that fog, but the Plum Pudding light was the finest on the coast. Phoebe's practical eye searched anxiously in the direction of the Plum Pudding. But she looked in vain; there was thick darkness everywhere. The lamp on the Plum Pudding was not lighted. Phoebe listened, and heard the steady plash of retreating oars. David Junkins and his friend were rowing vigorously to Pondunquit Harbor.

She ran down to the shore to the place where her rowboat was fastened. She got in and rowed swiftly out into the thick darkness. She had not her compass, which she usually carried in her pocket, and if she had, it was too dark to see it without a match. Could she find her way to the island? Phoebe rowed swiftly in the direction of where the Plum Pudding ought to be. Presently she felt that she had gone far enough. But where was the island? Why did she not get there? The bow of her boat seemed to be pointed toward the open sea. Had she been rowing toward the open sea instead of the Plum Pudding? And then suddenly it seemed to her that she was going back toward Mouse Island.

Stout hearted as she was, Phoebe felt her courage failing. She let the oars slip from her hands into the bottom of the boat, and uttered a faint cry of distress. It was so faint a cry that only the sea gulls could have heard it, but an answer seemed to come; the sharp shrill sound of a horn. It could be nothing but the great horn of the lighthouse, although it seemed to come from the direction of Pondunquit Harbor. The sound was repeated; it was the lighthouse horn. Phoebe rowed with might and main, and very soon a dark shape loomed before her through the darkness, and her boat grazed the rocks of the Plum Pudding. It was at the very steepest part of the rocks, but Phoebe could not delay to row to the land. Up she scrambled, never heeding that her clothes were torn and her hands scratched and bleeding.

It was difficult to find her way to the lighthouse in the thick darknees, and now there came no sound to guide her. Never before in Phoebe's lifetime had night found that lighthouse with darkened windows. And what had that horn meant? A terrible fear lest something worse than she had thought of had happened to her father made Phoebe's steps falter upon the very threshold. She pushed the door open, but only to find that the living-room, where her father always sat, was empty. Phoebe seized a light which was burning on the table and ran up the lighthouse stairs. At the top she almost stumbled over her father lying in a heap, the great horn fallen from his hands, his red face and heavy breathing showing his sad condition.

Phoebe sprang to the lamp. The great dazzling light flashed out. There was a few moments of perfect silence and then there came a shout from the water below. Phoebe seized the great horn and blew a blast in answer.

"Light ahoy!" shouts a voice again.

Phoebe seized her father's arm and shook him with all her strenght. He opened his eyes and tried with her help to stand upon his feet.

"Put your head out of the window and shout Ahoy! Oh, try your best to do it, father!" begged Phoebe.

He did try, but it was only a stammering whisper that came. Phoebe lowered her voice to the gruffest bass notes of which it was capable, and shouted "Ahoy" herself.

"All right," shouted the voices below. "We thought there was no light. The fog is so thick that we could not see it ten rods away. Never saw such a tog even in this place. Advance will be here to-morrow with supplies."

"Ay, ay, sir!" shouted Phoebe, still in gruffest tones.

And then, to her great relief, she heard the sound of retreating oars.

Then she helped her father down stairs to his bed. She did not go to bed herself, because she knew that her aunt would discover her abscence and send somebody in search of her, and it was not long before her cousin Augustus Algernon appeared.

"Tell Aunt Huldah Maria that I wanted to come home," was all that Phoebe would say.

"I don't see how you found your way," said Augustus Algernon. "The fog is so thick that I couldn't see a glimpse of the light till I got half way over. Folks over on the island thought it wasn't lighted. But they may be sure you never could have got here without any compass if it hadn't been."

The next morning Captain Saul came to Phoebe and laid his hand on her head.

"I tried to light the lamp, Phoebe; I didn't think I'd got so far that I couldn't, and I blew the horn twice; that was all I could do," he said.

"I might never have got here but for that, father," said Phoebe, taking his other hand in hers. She did not reproach him; she never thought of doing that.

"It was the mate that saved the ship last night," continued Captain Saul, in a voice that trembled, "but with God's help the captain will never be off duty again! He'll never dowse his peak and let that black pirate aboard again!" pointing to a bottle which Phoebe had seen many times before—"if not for his own sake, for the sake of his little gal—he swears that before the Lord."

If you would see how plump and rosy Phoebe has grown you would know that Captain Saul has kept his word. Aunt Huldah Maria had her suspicion about the doings of that night, but she never expressed them. And there are no signs that Leander Judkins will ever keep the lighthouse. The fog that was "so thick you couldn't see the Plum Pudding light ten rods away" is still famous.

Lost By A "T."

How a Leadvillian Lost a Fortune by the Omission of a Single Letter.

[Leadville Democrat.]

Speaking of the influence that small things exert on the affairs of life, and sometimes what stupendous results depend on things that are in themselves so small as to be almost unworthy of notice, a gentleman said to a reporter:

"It would hardly be supposed that a single letter, or for that matter any other letter in the alphabet, could have the effect of changing the whole course of a man's life, and possibly causing effect that would last through eternity."

The scribe agreed that it did not look as if so small a thing should produce so lasting and so great an effect.

"Well, it did in my case," said the gentleman. "I'll tell you the circumstances: Some twenty years ago, when I was younger than I am now, and had more money, too, than I have now, I was in Baltimore, Md., and was in correspondence with a gentelman in Michigan in reference to the purchase of a large saw-mill and an extensive tract of heavily timbered land. We had about agreed as to the terms. I made arrangements to meet him in Saginaw and perfect the trade, and sent him a telegram saying, "I will met you there." I immediately started on my journey to Saginaw, and when I arrived there I found that the gentleman whom I had gone to see had started, the same day I did, for Baltimore. On reaching that city he found that I had gone West, but no one knew whither, so he returned home. In the meantime I had started on my return trip from Saginaw to Baltimore to meet him there. When he got home he found another purchaser for the property, to whom he sold it, and received the money for it. The purchaser has since out of that very property, become one of the wealthiest men in the Northwest, while I am poor. The whole trouble resulted in the message being transmitted: "I will meet you here," instead of: "I will meet you there." He had acted in accordance with it as he received it, and I as I had sent it, and thus you see that the omission of the letter 't' kept me from making a fortune and changed the whole course of my existence. I am now struggling for a liying in Leadville, when, if it had not been for that unfortunate 't,' I would in all probability to-day be a millionaire and living in a marble residence, probably next to that of William H. Vanderbilt. Yes," said he, as he heaved a sigh, "the small things of this life are what we want to watch, and the chances are the large ones will take care of themselves."

The Case.

The court and jury, as well as the spectators, generally enjoy the scene when a lawyer, in an attempt to badger or browbeat a witness, comes off second best in the encounter. A contemporary recalls an amusing instance of this sort which happened a few years ago in an Albany court-room. The plaintiff, who was a lady, was called to testify. She got on very well, and made a favorable impression on the jury under the guidance of her counsel, Hon. Lyman Tremaine, until the opposing counsel, Hon. Henry Smith, subjected her to a sharp cross-examination. This so confused her that she became faint and fell to the floor in a swoon. Of course this excited general sympathy in the audience, and Mr. Smith saw that his case looked badly. An expedient suggested itself by which to make the swooning appear like a piece of stage mockery, and thus destroy sympathy for her. The lady's face in swooning had turned purple red, and this fact suggested the new line of attack. The next witness was a middle-aged lady. The counsel asked,—

"Did you see the plaintiff faint a short time ago, madam?"

"Yes, sir."

"People generally turn pale when they faint, do they not?"

Great sensation in court and evident confusion of witness. But in a moment she answered,—

"No, not always."

"Did you eyer hear of a case of fainting where the party did not turn pale?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you ever see such a case?"

"Yes, sir."

"When?"

"About a year ago."

"Where was it?"

"In this city."

"Who was it?"

By this time the excitement was so intense that everybody listened anxiously for the reply. It came promptly, with a twinkle in the witness's eyes and a tremor on her lip, as if from suppressed humor,—

"It was a negro, sir."

Peal after peal of laughter shook the court room, in which the venerable judge joined. Mr. Smith lost his case.

Wouldn't Give Him a Chance.

Old Simeon had been employed to work in Colonel Hatcher's garden. The Colonel noticed that the old man spent the most of his time at the kitchen window, talking to the colored lady who condescends to the menial office of cook. While the Colonel was standing at the front gate, Simeon came around and was in the act of passing out, when the Colonel observed the gentleman's coat bulging and his arm raised in a rather suspicious manner.

'Simeon, what's that you got under your arm?'

'Dis henh arm, sah?'

'Yes, that there arm.'

'Dis 'un?' placing his right hand on his left breast.

'Yes, I know which one I mean.'

'Yas, sah, yas. I'se got a powerful swellin' un'er my arm, sah.'

'There was nothing the matter when you came this morning.'

'For, sah, dat's a fack, but de swellin' wuz mighty suddent. I don't think dat my blood's right, sah.'

'No, and I don't think that your flesh is altogether aboye suspicion.'

'Doan think it is, sah. I'se had dis swellin' seberal times, sah in de last week ur two.'

'I don't doubt it in the least.'

'Nor, sah, nor. Wuz er workin' 'roun' dar jes' now an' de fust thing I knowed, dis arm guter go up, an' pains gunter shoot down dis laig. It wuz de furst time dat sich a thing hab eber happened an' it skeered me.'

'Thought you had been affected that way several times in the last week or two?'

'O, yas, but it wuz un'er de udder arm befo'. Keep on er swellin' jes' like I tells yer, till I git skeer, so I'se now goin' ter see a doctor, fur I doan want-er let it run on.'

'I am a physician. Let me examine you.'

'Hole on, boss,' stepping back. 'Yerse'f doan un'erstan' dis case. Yer mout be a good doctor wid de chills, but I'se erfeered ter trus' yer wid a case like dis. My regular family zishun is de only man what un'erstan's dis case.'

'Who is your physician?"

'Doctor Pillings.'

'He's out of town. You'd better let me make an examination.'

'Huh?' shifting uneasily.

'Let me see what's the matter?'

'Boss, my doctor tole me dat I musn't let no udder man tech me, 'cause if I did, de swellin' is ap' ter strike in an' kill me. 'Twain't fur dat, I'd put my se'f un'er your charge in a minit. I'se heard dat yer's a mighty fine 'zishun, an' if yer had took dis case at fust, w'y yer mout er been a good han' at it by dis time.'

'I have treated many a case like this,' said the Colonel, 'and I don't think that I would be discharging my sworn duty as a physician if I were to allow you to leave my premises without haying first attempted to relieve you.'

'Boss, heah is de fack in de case. Dr. Pillings owes me money, an' I hab promised to take it out in doctorin.' Now, if he finds out dat I'se 'ployed some udder man, he'll get mad, 'sides dat I ain't got der money to pay yer wid.'

'I won't charge you anything.'

'Yer's a powerful 'bligin' gennerman, but I doan' wanter take de 'vantage o' yer. I'se allus made it er rule not ter 'pose on a kind man.'

'I cannot allow you to go without exerting my skill,' taking hold of old Simeon.

'Heah, take de piecer meat!' lifting his coat and exhibiting a ham. 'Yer's de wust pusson I eber seed. Won't gib er man a chance nohow.'—Arkansaw Traveler.

Over the Fence.

Mrs. Singleton put her head over the fence and thus addressed her neighbor who was hanging out her week's washing,—

"A family has moved into the empty house across the way, Mrs. Clothesline."

"Yes, I know."

"Did you notice their furniture?"

"Not particularly."

"Two loads and I wouldn't give a dollar a load for it. Carpets! I wouldn't put them down in my kitchen. And the children! I won't allow mine to associate with them, you bet. And the mother! She looks as if she had never known a day's happiness. The father drinks, I expect. Too bad that such people should come into this neighborhood. I wonder who they are?"

"I know them."

"Do you? Well—I declare. Who are they?"

"The mother is my sister, and the father is superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school."

A painful pause ensues.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

HUMOROUS.

BASE INGRATITUDE.

"So you refuse to buy me that new silk dress!" said an Austin girl to her mother.

"No, Esmeralda, I really can't afford it."

"So that's the way you treat me, who have made you a happy mother. O, how sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless mother. When you first became my mother, I never dreamed that it would come to this."

TOOK THINGS EASY.

"Is it possible!" exclaimed the new chaplain to the worst thief in the penitentiary. "Are you fifty-two years old? My unfortunate friend, you don't look thirty!"

"No, replied the thief, humbly. "I don't show my age, but that is because I take things so easy."

And the good chaplain told him that he was right; that care and worry made men old faster than hard work.

A BASE SUPPOSITION.

"Who is that young man walking on the other side of the street? He must be some fugitive from justice. See the nervous, haunted expression of his countenance."

"Oh, no. He's no criminal. You're mistaken. Poor fellow, he's a base ball umpire, and his experience on the field has taught him to be constantly on the watch for some one throwing something at him."

A BOLD, BAD BEGGAR.

"Have you got fifty cents?" said a beggar to a surly passer-by.

"No, I haven't fifty cents."

"Well, have you got twenty-five cents?"

"No, I haven't."

"Have you got ten cents?"

"No."

"Have you got any sense at all?"

"No—yes—what's that? Get out, or I'll knock your face off."

The beggar got out, chuckling.

Skin Scraping Sarcasm.

'Is my shaving agreeable to you, sir?' a loquacious barber asked a customer whom he had been flaying alive.

'My wife would admire it very much,' rather indefinitely responded the man under torture.

'Ah,' said the barber with great complacency, 'ladies are often excellent judges of their husbands being well shaved. And you think mine will suit, sir?'

'No doubt of it in the world. It was only this morning she became angry because I told her I could not afford to buy her a spring bonnet, and she said I ought to be skinned alive.'

Thd barber lost himself in reflection.

A Good Thing.

'Some people never know when they have a good thing,' growled the dog-trainer to his friend, the mule-fancier, as he entered that gentleman's stable last night.

'What are you kicking about, now?' returned the mule-lover, speaking technically.

'A young married man came to my place about two weeks ago,' snarled the visitor, 'and said: 'I want to buy a well-trained house-dog—a smart one that will be a protector to my wife while I'm down town.' I sold him a St. Charles spaniil for $50 that knows more than many a detective sergeant. Yesterday he brought the dog back and wanted his money.'

'What was the matter?' asked the mule-fancier, sympathetically.

'The dog knew too much,' replied his friend sadly. 'Says the young man, 'My wife went to her mother's the day after I bought this dog and stayed away a week. The first night she returned this brute lugged the demijohn out of my side-board and hauled it under the dining table then when I went upstairs he tried to pull my boots off and the next morning nearly split my coat up the back to get me to the window when that pretty blonde passed whom I've been flirting with. My wife swears that the boys have been at the house every night that she left; That I've gone to bed with my clothes on, and that if the dog could only speak she could get a divorce. The beast is too smart. Give me $25 and take him back, and so,' concluded the dog-fancier, sorrowfully, 'Instead of making $45 I am only $25 and the dog ahead.'

'I feel for you,' said the mule-fancier. 'I sold a milk-dealer just what he asked for—a quiet mule. The next day he came back and wanted to know what sort of a beast that was. 'He goes to sleep about forty times along my route, and turned the milk sour with his snoring,' said the chalk-and-water peddler.

'What ailed him?' asked the dog-trainer.

'Well,' replied the mule-fancier with a grin, 'he was once driven in a delivery-wagon of the Baltimore newspapers, and that is certainly enough to make a mule drowsy for the rest of his life.'

P. GRAY MEEK, Chairman

THE Republicans have played the first part of the campaign programme by nominating Blaine and Logan for President and Vice President. Whether their choice is good or not remains to be seen as the time for election approaches.

The Democrats, we think, will nominate a ticket at their convention on the 8th of July, which will enable them to say "our side best." By all appearances Blaine has almost as many enemies in his own party, as he has admirers and a united Democracy led by a strong and unspotted ticket ought to be able to defeat a man whose character and statesmanship was dragged into the mire even by some of the most prominent Republican journals. The love of thousands of Stalwart Republicans for the tattooed man must increase wonderfully before the coming election if he would expect a united support from his party.

As it stands, Blaine and Logan, republican against———, Democratic, but the blank will be filled by a ticket that will knock the props out from under the enthusiastic and noisy Blaine crowd.

MARYLAND, Alabama, and Connecticuit held their Democratic conventions last week, each of them giving voice to their preferences of the '76 ticket.

HENRY G. VENNOR, the Canadian Weather prophet died at Montreal on Sunday, June 8th. He was about 43 years old.

Mr. Vennor has been best known by his weather predictions, which have reached the public through the newspapers.

Result of the Republican Convention.

Blaine and Logan Selected by the Convention.

CHICAGO, June 6.—The convention was called to order at 11.19 a. m., by Chairman Henderson who said: "The convention this morning will be opened by prayer by the Rev. Henry Martyn Scudder, of Chicago." Upon the conclusion of the prayer, the secretary called the roll of the states and territories that have not yet given in the names of the members of the national committee and which were passed yesterday.

A delegate from California—"I desire to offer a resolution without comment.'

Mr. Davis, of Illinois—"I demand the regular order. I object to this resolution."

The secretary then proceeded to call the roll of states for the nomination of a candidate for the presidency, the first ballot resulting as follows:

James G. Blaine,	334½
Chester A. Arthur,	278
George F. Edmunds,	93
John Sherman,	30
John A. Logan,	63½
Joseph A. Hawley,	13
Robert T. Lincoln,	4
William T. Sherman,	2
Total,	818
Necessary to a choice,	419

The second ballot resulted:

James G. Blaine,	349
Chester A. Arthur,	276
George F. Edmunds,	85
John Sherman,	28
John A. Logan,	61
Joseph R. Hawley,	13
Robert T. Lincoln,	4
William T. Sherman,	2

Upon the announcement of this ballot showing a gain of 14½ votes for Blaine, there was an outburst similar to that last night when the Blaine nominating speech was made. It was soon subdued, however, by the exertions of the chair. A great deal of confusion ensued as the various managers continued to run about the hall.

The third ballot gave the following result:

James G. Blaine,	375
Chester A. Arthur,	275
George F. Edmunds.	78
John A. Logan,	60
Scattering,	30

While the roll was proceeding and after the state of Nevada had been called delegates were seen rushing through the aisles in various directions. When North Carolina was reached there was a great deal of uproar, and the chair said: "The gentlemen in the aisles will please take their seats, and the sergeant-at-arms will please see that they do so." An assistant sergeant-at-arms rushed around at a terrific gait, insisting with vehemence, that the order applied with with peculiar force and was especially directed to the reporters. When the vote of Pennsylvania was announced, Mr. Magee and Mr. Flynn, of Pennsylvania, both challenged the vote and insisted on a count. While the roll was being called Mr. Baker, of Indiana, arose and said: "Mr. Chairman, I demand that the lobbyists who have taken possession of these aisles shall go to their places instantly." The Chair—"The gentlemen will resume their seats."

After a season of great confusion during which the audience materially assisted with their feet and their voices in swelling the tumult quiet was restored and the secretary proceeded with the call of the roll. When the state of Pennsylvania was reached the chairman of the delegation reported its vote.

The vote was immediately challenged and the call of the roll of the state delegation was ordered by the chair. When the result of the third ballot was announced there was another scene of wild confusion and cheering.

Mr. Foraker of Ohio arose and offered the following: "I move that the rules of this convention be suspended and that James G. Blaine be nominated by acclamation."(Loud applause and great confusion.)

Mr. Roosevelt, of New York—"It cannot be done." [Loud cries of "roll call, roll call," and continued confusion.] Amid the cries of 'roll call,' 'regular order' and scenes of the greatest confusion Mr. Foraker withdrew his motion and the secretary called the roll for the fourth ballot.

When Illinois was reached Mr. Cullom asked leave to read a dispatch from General Logan, but the chair decided out of order. He then announced that "the Illinois delegation withdraws the name of Logan and gives Blaine 34 votes, Logan 7 and Arthur 3." (Loud applause.) When Ohio was reached Judge Foraker withdrew Sherman's name and cast 46 votes for Blaine, amidst a tremendous outburst of applause. The secretary then announced the fourth ballot for president as follows: Whole number of delegates, 820; whole number of votes cast, 816; necessary to a choice, 411, of which Robert T. Lincoln received 2; John A. Logan 7; Joseph Hawley, 15; G. F. Edmunds, 41; Chester A. Arthur 207; James G. Blaine, 544. The announcement of the votes for Blaine got no further than the hundreds, for his voice was lost in the whirlwind of applause that followed the announcement of the fact of Blaine's nomination which had been certain ever since Cullom had tried to read his telegram from John A. Logan. Every person in the audience, delegates and visitors alike, rose to their feet simultaneously, and all being Blaine men, shouted and sang their delight at the success of the man from Maine with demostrations of joy such as had not been seen before at a convention. When order had been restored Mr. Burleigh, of New York, in behalf of and by request of the president of the United States, moved to make the nomination unanimous, Senator Sabin seconding the motion. The tremendous shout of 'aye' sent up by the vast multitude clearly showed the fact that the nomination was made unanimous. A recess was then taken until eight o'clock.

The Evening Session.

General John A. Logan Nominated for Vice President.

CHICAGO, June 6.—When the convention was called to order this evening the galleries were hardly less crowded than at any one of the proceeding sessions. Rev. Dr. Charles O'Reilly, treasurer of the Irish National League of America, opened the convention with prayer. A resolution was passed permitting the state central committee to name members of the national committee not already named.

Resolutions limiting the speeches of nominations to ten minutes passed and and the clerk proceeded to call the roll of the states for vice president. No response was received until Illinois was reached when Senator Plumbs, of Kansas, came forward and nominated Gen. John A. Logan.

Judge Hauck, of Tennessee, Mr. Thurston' of Nebraska, Mr. Lee, of Pennsylvania, Mr. Horr, of Michigan, and others seconded the nomination.

LOCAL NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENCE.—The object of local correspondence should be to furnish news—a record of events as they transpire—of general as well as local interest—sales of land and good stock, removals, sickness, deaths, the condition of the crops, etc., in fact everything that makes up the current history of the locality; but mere gossip and such items as are of no interest outside of the neighborhood and in fact but little within it, should be carefully and rigidly excluded; hence many of the personal items that are furnished might be omited without detriment to the paper. Anything designed to puff an individual or enhance the business of a firm should go in as an advertisement, except when occasionally a compliment is well deserved. It would be well, especially for new beginners, (and old timers may do well to heed the same) after writing an article to re-write it and expunge all that is superfluous—all that can be left out with loss of interest; in other words, "boil it down." At the same time newspapers should give their recognized correspondents exclusive territory, that the same items may not appear from different places.—Ex.

—Dinges, Vonada & Co., still do a large business for cash. Go and see them.

—Splendid and copious rains visited this and neighboring valley the last few days.

—John Kerstetter, the boss mason, of Boonville, is in town, working for J. W. Snook.

—Mrs. Sallie Alexander of Linden Hall was visiting friends at Millheim this week.

—Dr. J. F. Harter is off to accompany his family on their return trip from Altoona.

—Mr. J. O. Deininger of Centre Hall was in town on Monday attending B. & L. Association.

—Job work done neatly at this office and at prices as low as anywhere else. Bring your orders.

—Mr. Grenoble of Spring Mills sold the Spring Mills House to its present landlord, Mr. Bibby.

—Miss Caroline Gobble is building a new porch and sidewalk in front of her residence on Main street.

—Mr. Samuel Winters is lying dangerously ill at the residence of Mr. Michael Ulrich, his son-in-law.

—Mr. D. F. Taylor of College township is a candidate for assembly. See announcemnt in this paper.

—Attractive circulars are being distributed by D. S. Kauffman & Co., today. Keep a lookout for them.

—They will be here—the fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, uncles, aunts & cousins—to take in the show.

—We are glad to hear that Mr. B. F. Miller has been taking a short walk for the first time in about three months, last Monday.

—Mr. Jacob Wolf is absent on a visit to Mrs. Mary Neff, one of his daughters, residing at Blain, Perry Co., Pa.

FOR SALE.—A good dwelling house in Millheim, centrally located. For particulars inquire at this office. tf

—James C. Smith and family have been away over Sunday on a visit to Mrs. Smith's parents, near Lock Haven.

FOR SALE.—About one thousand feet of Dry Linn Boards. Inquire at this office. W.
tf.

—Mr. —— Buck, a brother of Geo. Buck is at present staying in town, assisting him in the photographing business.

—G. W. Harter made his grocery more attractive by putting up a new and bright sign—painted by C. W. Albright.

—John Miller, at the Meat Market, is busy from morning till night, supplying his many customers with first-class meat.

—The time for spirited political arguments in our stores and on the streets corners will soon be here. Only keep cool, gentlemen.

—Three prominent farmers were killed at Liverpool, Pa., in a row, which originated in a dispute over the nomination of Blaine and Logan.

—Mr. John Coldren of Gregg township, a solid and tried Democrat, announces himself as a candidate for sheriff in this week's JOURNAL.

—C. W. Albright reports that they have as much work at their shops as they can attend to. The effects of giving satisfaction to all customers.

—Mr. L. A. Shaffer of Bellefonte called on us on Monday. He is a candidate for the office of Prothonotary and announces himself as such in this paper.

—Read the Sale Notice of D. P. Heckman's property near Penn Hall. If you are in need of a good and desirable home you would better purchase from him.

—Our enterprising grocery man, G. W. Harter, has his say in an advertisement appearing in the first column. Read it and take the contents to heart. Give him a call.

—Mr. Elias Luse's and F. D. Luse's residence on Penn street has been repainted in bright colors. The work of improving properties seems to be all the go in Millheim.

—E. W. Mauck hereby informs the public that he has a nice stock of wall-papers on hand, which he will sell at and below cost, wishing to go out of the business for the time being.

—A new and fine looking picket fence has been erected by Mr. Jacob Keen in front of his house on Penn street. Weather boarding and a few coats of paint would improve his residence still more.

—Another store has been opened by Messrs. Jonathan and A. J. Harter, on Main street, formerly Mrs. Sallie Alexander's Millinery shop. They keep the finest harnesses on hand there, selling them at very reasonable prices.

—The masons have commenced work on the foundation walls of the new Reformed church at Aaronsburg. If they continue to make as rapid progress they may complete their job in about two weeks.

—Our druggist, Jacob Eisenhuth, runs a refreshment stand, in connection with the drug business. Lemonade, Soda Water mixed with the best flavors in market, &c, can be had there at any time. Call and taste.

—A good amount of space is devoted by nearly all the papers over the state to base ball news. Millheim is contented with the quiet game of quoit pitching, this summer. It does not require so much exertion, you know.

—Gypsies were around town this week trying to beg anything and everything people would give them. They departed empty-handed, however. Right, they are an imposing and arogant set of folks, and should be made to work for their living.

—Mr. D. A. Musser brought two mammoth strawberries to the JOURNAL office the other day. They are about the size of a full-grown walnut and have a delicious flavor. He says their straw berry bed is just full of the like and they expect to have a splendid crop.

—The residence and the storehouse of Mrs. A. Alexander on corner of Main and Penn streets were repainted in the last few days. That will cast the neighboring buildings in the shade. Better follow suit, and give the whole centre square of town an overhauling.

—Spring Mills has a new mercantile firm—Grenoble & Bartholomew. We congratulate our friend William and wish him abundant success in his new position. Grenoble & Bartholomew make a popular firm, both being merchants of much experience and business tact.

—DRUGGISTS as a rule are extremely jealous and careful of the honor of their profession, and are loth to praise a medicine which they do not from personal knowledge know to be a meritorious article. They all agree, however, that for smallness of dose, easiness to take, and effectiveness as a worm destroyer, McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders are the best and most desireable vermifuge in their stock, and do not hesitate to recommend them. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded.
JOHNSON, HOLLOWAY & CO.,
Philadelphia Agents.
Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

—D. S. Kauffman & Co., have just received a large stock of ready made clothing, consisting of the finest selections the market affords. Will be sold at rock bottom prices. Call and examine our new goods.

—Solomon Kleckner, a resident of Brush Valley, died at his home last Thursday afternoon. He was prostrated by a type of melancholy some weeks ago and gradually sank away. He attained an age of 61 years, 10 months and 21 days. The interment took place last Sunday afternoon, pastor N. J. Miller officiating.

—The Millheim Musical Association has entered upon its second quarter by a meeting held in the U. B. church last Saturday evening. Owing to the absence of several of the members the attendance was not as large as would have been desirable. They will meet in the M. E. church next Saturday evening.

—Music Students from ten counties and the state of Connecticut are now attending the 24th session of the Musical College at Freeburgh, Pa., under the care and management of F. C. Moyer, Director. Three eminent teachers are engaged, having in use six pianos and seven organs. Next session will begin July 29th.

—"An editor," says an exchange, "is a man who is liable to grammatical blunders, toothache, typographical errors, and lapse of memory; and usually he has ninety-seven thousand people watching to catch him tripping. He is a man of sorrow, acquainted with grief and poverty, and frequently liable to be ragged, hungry and dry for a very long period."

—Abs. Harter is busy hauling up Perry Spring Harrows from the station. He uses a fine, new wagon, with gilt letters, and has his place of business on Main street, formerly D. I. Brown's tin shop, packed full with the celebrated Harrows. Farmers, when you come to town, call at Harter's implement store.

A. CROWNOVER, Saulsbury, Pa., writes:

"J. A. McDonald,

Dear Sir:—Your Liver Pills are giving good satisfaction here, and there is quite a demand springing up for them. Please send me three dozen boxes at once, as I am out and some of my customers won't have any other."

Comment needless. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded.

—Charles Smith, Esq., of Bellefonte, gave us a call on Saturday. He gave this part of the country an introductory canvass, being candidate for county treasurer without any opposition. We think it is agreeable all around, to see him the only candidate as he is a prominent and active democrat and a bout as good a man as could be picked for the office.

Communicated.

MR. EDITOR:

Permit me through the columns of the JOURNAL to call the attention of our citizens—and particularly of our borough officers—to the shameful conduct that prevailed in front of the Evangelical church on Thursday evening when the Harry sisters gave their concert. The behavior of our young bloods of both sexes was so outrageous that I was ashamed of them, ashamed of the town on their account. The Millheim boy is not noted for extra good manners at best, but on this occasion he exceeded himself beyond anything he ever before accomplished.

But where were our peace officers, and how about those resolutions passed by the town council at one of its first meetings in the spring? But no matter, the worst of these young sports who so utterly disgraced themselves, their parents and the town, are known and spotted. They will be attended to the first time they again give reason for it. CITIZEN.

—The announcements of James A. McClain for Register and Frank E. Bible, for Recorder, both gentlemen of Bellefonte, appear in this issue. Both are looked on as able and efficient officers, who performed the duties of their respective offices conscientiously for the last three years and are active and honest Democrats. There are no other candidates for said offices and the voters of Centre county will show their appreciation of well-rendered services by willingly nominating Mr. McClain and Mr. Bible at the coming county convention.

—The four greatest and most desirable properties of a successful medicine are perfectly combined in McDonald's Blood Purifier or Sarsaparillian Alterative. In malassimilation of food and dyspepsia its effects are speedy and happy. For disfiguring humors of scrofula and tetter, the loathsome sores of venereal diseases, the burning tortures of erysipelas, no other medicine can possibly equal it. As a spring medicine, perfect blood purifier, efficient and safe diuretic and aperient, it meets with gratifying favor from the medical profession and the people. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded.

☞ TAKE NOTICE.—The READY-MADE CLOTHING, formerly kept in stock by H. H. Tomlinson, has been removed to Jacob Sankey's dwelling house on Main Street, and will be sold at a sacrifice in order to pay a debt resting on the same. The goods are nearly all new, having only been bought a short time ago. Everybody is invited to come and secure the best bargains ever offered in this vicinity. Don't forget the place—Sankey's residence, Main Street, Mill heim Pa., two doors east of Bank.

—Prof. Harry's educated little girls of 12, 9 and 6 years respectively, who gave an entertainment in the Ev. church of this place last Thursday evening, made friends and admirers of every person who witnessed their wonderful exhibition of literary and musical accomplishments. They are three winning children and involuntarily lay hold upon your special favor. We are only sorry to say, that, instead of a full house, but a small audience was in attendance and we ardently hope that on their next appearance in our town the public will be more generous in their patronage. They furnish a rich treat to all intelligent hearers and we would say that we were very much gratified by their excellent performancee.

DEATH OF AN OLD WESTERN SETTLER.—Mrs. Samuel Runkle, a native of Centre county, Pa., and a sister of Jacob Keen of this town, departed this life at her residence, near Oneco, Stephenson Co., Ill., on May 31st, 1884, after suffering from cancer for several years. Mrs. Runkie was born in Centre county, January 15th, 1814, where she spent the early portion of her life. Over fifty years ago she was married to Mr. Runkle and in 1845 they went West. They settled at Rock Grove and lived there for fifteen years, when they moved to near Oneco, where they resided up to Mrs. Runkle's death. Deceased was a daughter of George & Sarah Keen of Centre county, where she has brothers and one sister and many relations. She leaves a husband and seven children, besides many grand children to mourn her loss.

—The other day landlord Musser of the Millheim Hotel took us through his renovated house and we must say that it is now the best arranged and most improved hotel on this side of the mountain. Everything from one end to the other is changed and enlarged. The dinning room on the first story is made almost twice its former size and is an airy and pleasant hall, which at all times is filled with tables groaning under the load of the best victuals to be had in the market. The bar right in front of the dinning room is one of the finest to be seen anywhere. Refrigerators are used to keep everything fresh and cool. The guest rooms on the first story have been multiplied and repainted and repapered, and look very clean and cozy. A double porch runs all along the back of the house, affording a shady retreat for the boarders and travelers. Well-furnished washrooms, water closets and clothes presses may be found upstairs as well as downstairs. The stables are roomy and cleanly and horses are always promptly and carefully attended to. In short our town can justly be proud of such a public house and Mr. Musser and his hospitable lady deserve great credit and praise for their enterprise. We could name no better place for strangers to stop at than the Millheim Hotel.

COBURN BRIEFS.

Great excitement prevails here on account of precious minerals, which are claimed to have been found in great qualities. The finder is reported to be worth $100,000 already. Bring it out and let us see it.

First grand excursion from Centre Hall to Spring Mills on the new railroad is to take place next Wednesday, as follows: Train leaves C. H. for S. M. at 5 p. m., S. M. for C. H. at 6.30 p. m., C. H. for S. M. at 11.00, p. m. Tickets for the round trip 30cts. As it connects with the regular evening train quite a number of our citizens expect to take a ride.

The circusman occasioned quite a stir the other day among the boys and Millheim can expect a full delegation from Coburn on Thursday.

Saturday our stores did a big trade and our town is becoming more popular.

Coburn is to have a large hotel as a summer resort and certainly they cannot find a more delightful spot in this county. Will give particulars later.

Some of our young folks enjoy moonlight excursions on the water. No doubt they have nice times and we older folks almost envy them.

A number of prominent ladies and gentlemen from the coal regions have been spending a week here. Z.

WASHBURN & HUNTING'S UNITED SHOWS.—The great shows of L. W. Washburn & Robert Hunting having been consolidated for this season, thus making one of the largest and grandest shows in America, as their shows before united were two of the leading shows of America. This great consolidation will be in this borough Thursday June 12th. The menagerie contains numerous cages of rare animals. The great black elephant being a great feature which is by far a greater curiosity than a white Elephant.

The museum contains many curiosities, and Sergt. John Mason the would be slayer of the assassin of our great martyred President, Garfield, will hold receptions in his tent. In the circus, although large enough for three rings contains but one, as a person can only look at one ring at a time. In this large ring will be seen the best performance ever given by any show. Among the performers are M. Robert Whittaker, the champion bare back rider of the world, who was with Forepaugh last year. Also the daring equestrienne, Miss Lizzie Keys. The Hunting's, Robert and Clarice, the finest trapeze performers in the world. Reomer and Lurouk, Barnum's $5,000 challenge horizontal bar performers, and fifty other performers, the best in the circus profession. In speaking of this show, the Keystone Courier, of Connelsville, Pa. says:

"Nearly five thousand people were agreeably surprised last Friday, by the performance of the Washburn & Hunting circus. The circus performance was the best ever seen in this city, and we have had Foregaugh and Barnum. Roemer and Lerouk came in for the greatest applause, they being the favorites. We hope Messrs. Washburn & Hunting success, as they deserve it."

Don't forget the date, Thursday, June 12th. Grand street parade at 11 o'clock, on day of show. Usual price of admission.

—OH! OH! This howling, jumping raging toothache! I would give anything for relief. Well; it won't cost you much. 15 cents will get you a bottle of the Great Zingari Toothache Drops, Guaranteed. For toothache and neuralgia the Great Zingari have no, equal. Keep them in the house, they may save you hours of agony. Sold by Jacob Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

Madisonburg Scraps.

Andrew Ocker of this place has contracted to build Dr. Huston's house in Nittany valley.

Daniel Roush scalped a fox on the mountain above H. R. Fiedler's on Monday forenoon.

Levi Fullmer and George Miller put up forty-three panels of post fence in one day. Anybody to beat that?

Benjamin Roush purchased a very fine horse from a Clarion county drover the other day.

Mrs. Charlotte Smith, of Tusseyville, paid her father, Mr. Michael Bierly, a short visit last Friday.

Miss Mazie Reber has gone to Mifflinburg to visit her parents.

Luther Stover is giving the store house a coat of paint. Nevan, the clerk, feels proud of the improvement.

Mrs. Gramley, of Adamsburg, Snyder county, is visiting her father, Jerimiah Hoy.

John Breon, while working on Geo. Vonada's steam saw mill below Rebersburg was caught by a large belt and had his face badly bruised.

Levi Fullmer has built a porch to his house.

Reuben Grimm has bought himself an organ.

Clarence Moyer sold his horse to D. Moyer of Centre Hall.

John Fullmer came home on Saturday. He had been in Snyder county for some time.

Prof. J. B. Harry's educated children exhibited in the Ev. church of this place on Saturday evening. Their performances were good, but the audience small, we are sorry to say. *

Presidents at Dinner.

The White House Stewart Describing the Table Habits of Hayes, Garfield and Arthur.

I had an interesting chat, writes a Washington correspondent, with Mr. Crump, steward of the White House under Hayes and Garfield. Said he, 'The position of steward at the White House pays $1,800 a year, and it was, under Hayes, a very nice position. The steward has the full charge of the White House. He is responsible for everything. He must see about the table, attend to the catering and keep the servants and the house in order. When Hayes and Garfield were at its head the position was easier than now, on account of the good hours they kept. Each of them had his last meal over by 6 o'clock, or a little later, and we got through dish-washing by 8, so that the men could go away. Of course, I refer to ordinary days when there were no state dinners. Mr. Arthur has his dinner between 8 and 9 o'clock, and his friends often sit at the table until 12 and 1 o'clock. The hours are all changed now.

"President Garfield was very plain in his diet. He came into the White House with dyspepsia, and he was doctoring all the time up until he was shot. He ate no rich food and was particular about his hours. He had breakfast at 8:30 in the morning, when he would eat a good beefstake and some baked potatoes with cream poured over them. This was a favorite dish of Garfield's, and it was one which he ate when he could eat nothing else. It is delicious, and far surpasses baked potatoes and good butter. Then Garfield was also fond of a little nice bacon fried to a crisp, and this with a few side dishes made up his breakfast. Dinner he ate at 3. p. m,, and this meal was much the same as his breakfast. He always had his beefstake, and neither he or Mrs. Garfield were big eaters. About 7 o'clock he had tea, and this was a very light meal also. There was generally some one present to dine with the family, but there was no wine at the White House during the Garfield administration."

"Tell us something about Hayes."

"During the administration of Hayes there was wine used at only one dinner, and that was at the one given to the Grand Duke Alexis. During their family meals there was never wine on the table nor was there any at the state dinners. The Hayes family were good livers, and they were also great entertainers. During the last three months of Hayes' term there was an average of thirty-seven at each dinner, and he always had a house full of guests."

"It costs a good deal to run the White House, I can tell you, and Arthur will have to have a great many things sent in by the neighbors if he carries much of his salary away. Hayes had a number of friends such as Major McKinley of Ohio and others, who had a standing invitation to be present at his family dinner. He never set the table for less than fourteen, and they were generally full. So you want to know what Hayes ate?" continued Mr. Crump. "Well, his hours were breakfast at 8 or half past 8, lunch at 1, and dinner at 6. He was a great lover of oatmeal and grits, and we always had these on the table as a part of the breakfast. Then, we would have fruit in the season, good steak or mutton chops, buckwheat or corn cakes."

"Was Hayes much of a candy eater?" I asked.

"What?" replied the steward; "why sir, he had a sweeter tooth than any child in America. All of the family are very fond of candy, and we always have it on the dinner-table. It was of the assorted kinds, and it was eaten of liberally. Mr. Hayes did not like pork. He said he had eaten enough of it in the army to do him a life-time. Mr. Hayes was a pleasant man to work for, and Mrs. Hayes was one of the kindest ladies that the White House ever had. I keep a list of all the callers upon Mrs. Garfield, and some of those who called upon Mrs. Hayes. At one of Mrs. Garfield's receptions Guiteau was present."

"Is the position of steward a desirable one?"

"Not very at this time. The work is very hard. In addition to the catering and seeing that the house is kept in order, the steward has to watch the relic-hunters. It is outrageous how strangers will destroy the furniture. We often found the carpets cut after a big reception, and it was a common thing to see a hole cut out of a lace curtain. Sometimes the chairs would be cut, and at one time a piece large enough to make a cane was broken out of a safa back. In the east room, just under the mantle, there are a number of little carved, gilt knobs which screw into the wood work, and at one reception seventeen of them were stolen."

A Fair View of It.

'Did you notice what a boor that man was who sat next to you?' asked one lady of another as the pair stepped off a woodward avenue car the other day.

'How ?'

'Because; he refused to pass up the fare for the lady in the lavender satin.'

'Oh, well, you see, they were divorced only two days ago, and it couldn't be expected that he would recover his composure this soon It is a mean thing in any divorced woman to expect her ex-husband to pass alimony money up to the fare box.'

CONSUMPTION

Is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well.
